Home•Everything Under The Heavens – Howard French Everything Under The Heavens – Howard French From a former New York Times Asia correspondent and author of China's Second Continent, an insive investigation into the development of Chinese ideology as it becomes an increasingly aggressive player in regional and global diplomacy. For years after its reforms and opening in 1978, China maintained a false attitude of decency about its ambitions. That role, reports Howard French, has been sidelined. China has asserted its place among global heavyweights, revealing its plans for pan-Asian dominance by building its navy, increasing territorial claims to areas such as the South China Sea, and diplomatically cracking down on smaller players. Underlying this stance is the tension of thought that casts China's current actions in clear historical terms, as a way to restore dynastic glory in the past. If we understand how that historical identity relates to current actions, in ideological, philosophical, and even legal ways, we can learn to estimate what kind of global power China is - and to interact wisely with future peers. We liberate people from emotional bondage and empower them to live a changing life. To achieve our goals, the H.O.P.E. program is designed to help people 1) raise hope, 2) overcome the emotional pain of various problems, 3) build a safe and healthy support network, 4) understand the truth about God amid pain while exposing and replacing lies, and 5) undergo life transformation through the healing and restorative power of Jesus Christ. Our transformation model consists of three levels. Spiritual & Coach Guide Emotional is used in Level 2 when we pair our members with Spiritual and Emotional Coaches (SPEC). SFC enables us to expand our services by providing additional support to our members through one-on-one mentoring relationships outside of their small groups. The analogy used for our members needing SPEC is contractors who can help them with their emotional and spiritual construction. Our members need contractors (SPEC) who follow the architect's plan (Jesus Christ) in their lives and who can help them rebuild by doing the same. Our members need contractors (SPEC) who can train them to use their own experiences with the spiritual and emotional rebuilding process. Therefore, this book is designed to empower and complement our SNIC by helping them realize and utilize the knowledge and tools available to them in this role. The book also contains a topical Bible reference guide for easy access to verses that can be applied to a variety of issues. In addition, the book is designed to help familiarize SPEC with and what their members are going through. in Genesis 1:1, many translators use the English word heaven instead of heaven for ha-shamayim. The Earth is part of the cosmos created from Gen 1.1, referring to everything under the sky, including the waters (Earth and Waters. 42). Author: Michael David Kaulana Ing Publisher: Oxford University Press ISBN: 9780199924905 Category: Religion Page: 320 View: 807 Download → In The Dysfunction of Ritual in Early Confucianism Michael Ing describes how early confucians overcame situations where their rituals failed to achieve their intended goals. Unlike most contemporary confucian translators, Ing points out that early Confucian texts could be read as arguments for ambiguity in ritual failure. If, as discussed in one text, Confucius built a tomb for his parents unlike an ancient tomb, and rain fell causing the tomb to collapse, it was not immediately clear whether this failure was the result of random misfortune or the result of Confucius deviating from the ritual text by building tombs that were not harmonious with the ancients. Liji (Ritual Record)—one of the most significant, but least studied, confucian texts —evokes many of these situations and shows that the line between preventable and inexcusable ritual failure is not always clear. Ritual performance, in this view, is performance This requires rendering yourself vulnerable to agency agencies and resign to the need to vary from past successful rituals, thus moving to untested and uncertain territory. Ing's book was the first monograph in English on Liji—a text purporting to be the direct disciple of Confucius, and belonged to the earliest canon of confucius texts called "The Five Classics," several centuries before Analects. This challenges some of the common assumptions of contemporary translators of Confucius ethics - in particular the idea that the cultivated ritual agent is able to recognize which failures are within its scope of control to prevent and thus make his happiness immune to ritual failure. ...
